There are a great many people in America nowadays who seem to have lost faith in the future of the country completely. They apparently believe that all leadership is lost, politically and economically, that America has been deprived of its inventive genius and its courage, that all consumers in the United States are supplied with everything they will need for all time to come and that consequently there is no hope for development in the future. All of those of little faith might get some tonic effect from reading an address given a few days ago before the Boston Chamber of Commerce by Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. In touching on this spirit of defeatism Mr. Hays said:

"America can never face a permanent unemployment problem or loss of basic wealth until opportunity and ambition dissolve partnership. As an example of how in the past we have created resources where none existed, to help stoke the banked fires of initiative and enterprise, I direct your attention to the motion picture industry. Subtract the wealth created by the motion picture, radio and automobile from America's income and you must look to your balance sheet. Yet these vast industrial empires have been added to our national estate in virtually 20 years. Opportunity in democracy is never a monopoly of the few—or the exclusive friend of any particular generation.

"And there are still enough new ideas over the hills ahead waiting to be cultivated, to furnish jobs and opportunity to six millions or to sixty millions. Ideas so stupendous that even contemporary open-mindedness can no more estimate their earning and employment power than our grandfathers could reconcile experience with the telegraph or telephone."

Anybody who will stop for a moment to think will recognize the truth and significance of these statements of the former postmaster general. It cannot be that in two brief years American genius and American enterprise have been completely dried up. The forces which perfected our great industrial enterprises are still at work. America is not surfeited with new things. Many things are coming within the next few years, like radio, the motion picture, the automobile and the airplane came during the last generation, and they will be just as much in demand from the American people as were these achievements of the present era. We are now going through a process of readjustment, necessary because we tried to travel too fast and to take the whole world on our shoulders instead of looking after America first. These adjustments will be completed finally, and then we will move forward once more.

There has been of late a noticeable change in the attitude of the professional business baiters, the men who thought that the way to make themselves popular and to

READ THE PRESSMRS. LAUGHLIN TO GIVE SOUTH SEA
LECTURE FRIDAY

Much interest is being manifested in the lecture to be given Friday evening by Mrs. Laughlin, at the library hall.

The South Seas have always had lure for travelers and readers which has been augmented since the advent of moving pictures. The speaker has visited these isles, both afar and nearer home and has many interesting things to show of the native handicraft and styles of dress. These latter will probably be displayed on living models, and the address will be illustrated with slides.

Of interest to both adults and children, it should merit a full house, as the proceeds go to swell the County Federation Student Loan Fund. This fund is loaned to needy ambitious students in our local colleges. The students applying for loans must be residents of the county.

Tickets may be obtained from members of the Country Woman's club or the Pundita Circle, both of which are sponsoring the entertainment.

W. S. Shelley was here from Ben Lomond yesterday on business. He stated that they are now on their second year of rainfall in his region, 43 inches to be more exact.

The first group of the guild will hold its initial meeting this Thursday afternoon, January 7 at the home of Mrs. C. E. Williams, corner of Sunnyside avenue and Winchester road. A full attendance is urged to plan work for the year.

help the farmer and the laborer was to cripple and destroy American industry, which furnished employment to labor and gave it the wages with which to buy the products of the farmer. These business baiters have found that crippling business does not work out as they thought it would, and now, having succeeded in hamstringing it with paternalistic laws and regulations, they find that they have well nigh ruined the farmer and the workingman, and everyone else as well. As a result there has been a change of attitude, and if, as now seems more probable, the tendency in congress and the state legislatures from now on will be to help rather than cripple business, the process of readjustment will have been quickened considerably. As Mr. Hays says further on in his admirable address: "No one of course would suggest that legislation yield has its right to interpose upon business reasonable conditions, clearly in the public interest. I only urge that the method employed shall be such as to cause the result to coincide with the intent. I ask for reasonable freedom for American business to keep itself abreast of changing conditions and to erect a more stable edifice of prosperity." With that suggestion no reasonable, right thinking American will have any quarrel.

The Holidays Are Over

MODERN MUSIC IS
THEME AT MEET
OF WOMAN'S CLUB

The Country Woman's club enjoyed a discussion of modern tendencies in music, at its meeting Monday afternoon, presented by Leroy V. Brandt of the Institute of Music of San Jose.

Mr. Brandt stated that modern composers were working along five lines. First is the jazz idiom, which is bound to affect future work somewhat. There are two types of syncopated music: the popular numbers here today and gone tomorrow, and there is also jazz music in symphonic form.

The second group is designated as program music, in which the author is picturing something that happens—music of realism.

The third class include those with a tendency toward enlarged tonality in whose compositions the key center or note does not have the importance it once did.

The fourth movement is toward atonalism, compositions with no key center, and the fifth, followers of the romantic school started by Beethoven with the modern tendency toward the use of dissonances.

These five styles of composition were illustrated with phonograph records of some of the most characteristic works.

Miss Katherine Wood played two piano numbers by American composers, "Country Dance," Alexander McFadden, and "Polonaise," by Carpenter. She responded to an encore with "Clog Dance" by Howard Hansen, former dean of music at the College of Pacific.

The committee in charge of the program included Mrs. L. T. Lenox, chairman; Mrs. Bertha H. Jackson, Mrs. E. C. Merrill, Mrs. L. C. Shank and Mrs. A. B. Townsend.

They had arranged lovely banks of greenery and berries about the room and placed bowls of heather on the president's table and the piano. The latter was glowingly attractive with the addition of deep pink penstemon.

Announcement was made that Mr. Hugh Gillis of San Jose will speak at the next meeting on "Modern Drama Since the World War."

LOCAL TELEPHONE
BOOTH IS VISITED BY LONE ROBBER

Between 5:30 and 6:00 a. m. Thursday morning, the toll station telephone and coin box at the local telephone office was taken from the booth by a lone robber. Miss Winnie Grizzle was the operator on duty at the time and as she opened the door of the office to take in the morning paper a man left the booth carrying the telephone and jumped into an automobile standing at the curb and drove away. As the night watchman had just gone off duty Miss Grizzle called him and he investigated the theft immediately but no trace could be found of the man. Miss Grizzle states that she heard someone enter the booth but thought they were looking at the book for an address or number.

That was the only robbery that took place in Campbell but another theft was discovered that morning at the Standard Oil plant in Los Gatos. A quantity of tools, oil and grease, tires and other accessories were taken from the office. It is believed that the same man did both jobs.

INCREASE SHOWN IN BANK FIGURES
OF PAST 3 MONTHS

Marked by a gain of $5,350,000 in deposits during the last quarter and a higher ratio of liquidity, American Trust company's statement of condition for Dec. 31, 1931, reveals an aggregate of $109,130,000 in cash, government, municipal and other bonds at the close of the year. The latter figure establishes an increase of $7,992,000 in these items since the end of the third quarter and represents a virtually 50 per cent coverage of total commercial and savings deposits, $220,205,000.

Loans and discounts totaling $126,992,000 on Dec. 31, showed a decline during the fourth quarter of $4,252,000.

Analysis of the year-end statement of this large local institution, which has concentrated its banking activities in the San Francisco Bay region and its immediate environs, reflects the conservative policy that has actuated banks generally throughout the nation in maintaining a highly liquid condition.

Cash on hand and in banks totaled $34,529,000; United States government bonds and notes, $44,028,000; state, county and municipal bonds $25,815,000, and other bonds and securities $4,756,000.

The ladies of the Congregational church presented Mrs. J. H. Bennett an outdoor wheelchair as a Christmas present.

Mrs. H. Ward gave an old-fashioned quilting bee for a number of her friends Saturday afternoon delicious refreshments were served.

The annual banquet of the Congregational church will be held tomorrow evening at 6:30, in the church.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the Orchard City Grange will meet with Mrs. J. H. Campbell at 139 S. Second street Friday afternoon, January 8 at 1 o'clock.

Japan Succeeds in Pushing China Out of Manchuria—Plans for Unemployment Relief and Government Economy.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

JAPAN, ignoring the orders of the League of Nations and resolutely disregarding the notes from the United States and other powers, is apparently to have her own way in Manchuria. Conveniently dubbing all opposing forces "bandits," she sent her armies forward from Mukden during the week in an advance that was destined to reach Chinchow. Resistance was met at various points but was overcome with armored trains, bombing planes and artillery, and the Chinese steadily fell back.

Finally Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang decided it was better to give the Japanese no further excuse for carrying the warfare into North China, so he ordered all his forces to withdraw within the Great Wall, and this movement was begun immediately, accompanied by much confusion and the flight of the panic-stricken civilian population of the region. Thus the Japanese gained complete control of Manchuria and the gallant fight put up by General Ma Chan and by the troops directly under command of Marshal Chang has been in vain.

In Nanking the new coalition government was organized and a new cabinet appointed with Eugene Chen, leader of the Canton faction as minister of foreign affairs. It was thought that Chen might be able to negotiate a settlement with Japan on the basis of guarantees for fulfillment of treaties in exchange for military withdrawal of the Japanese.

MOSCOW charges that Czechoslovakia has been plotting to provoke war between Russia and Japan, presumably to promote the sale of war munitions. The story was that a Czech diplomat had tried to instigate the assassination of Koki Hirota, Japanese ambassador to Moscow, and the man accused turned out to be Carl Wanek, secretary of the Czech diplomatic mission to Moscow. The government at Prague recalled Wanek but scouted the allegation that the mission itself was involved in any plot.

Wanek has a reputation as a specialist in military affairs in several large European countries, and counts among his associates the military attaches of several allied capitals.

MAHATMA GANDHI, returning to Bombay from the round table conference in London, told a vast throng of his followers that he would not flinch from sacrificing the lives of a million people as the price of liberty for India, and he warned them that in the coming conflict with the British they might have to face bullets instead of staves. His utterances plainly indicated that he is about ready to abandon his policy of passive resistance.

"If the fight is inevitable, I will expect every son and daughter of Mother India to contribute his mite," he said. "However, I will not abandon attempts to save the nation from a fiery ordeal. If, on the other hand, there is no single ray of hope I shall not hesitate to call upon you to bear any amount of suffering."

He counseled his followers to keep their heads, despite the bloody events in the northwest frontier province, the arrest of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and deportation of Abdul Gaffur Khan, leader of the "red-shirt" tribesmen.

The trouble on the northwest frontier of which Gandhi spoke is giving Viceroy Lord Willingdon great concern. The anti-British red-shirt organization staged violent riots near Peshawar and fought with the troops, many being killed and wounded.

WASTE and extravagance in the federal government must be reduced, in the opinion of President Hoover, and many others as well, and it was announced at the White House that the President was preparing a special message to congress recommending the consolidation of departments and bureaus. He wants immediate legislative action providing for grouping all construction activities of the government under one administrative head and the transfer of the shipping board and all federal merchant marine activities to the Department of Commerce.

According to a statement issued by the President, the purpose of the consolidations is to cut the cost of federal government, curtail the growth of independent bureaus, eliminate overlapping and promote efficiency. While refusing to set a definite figure indicating the savings which would follow the consolidations, Mr. Hoover said the grouping last year of all veterans' activities under the veterans' administration is expected to save from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Chairman Cochran of the house expenditures committee, which will handle the consolidation legislation, is in accord with most of the Chief Executive's recommendations.

DURING the holiday recess a senate committee considered two bills that call for the appropriation of federal funds to care for the unemployed, and heard testimony and arguments from social workers from Chicago, New York and other cities. One of the measures, introduced by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, provides for the appropriation of $250,000,000. The other, fathered by Senator Costigan of Colorado, puts the amount at $375,000,000. Mr. Costigan told the committee that nothing short of government help could provide necessary relief for the unemployed. Some of the witnesses heard estimated that as much as $700,000,000 would be needed for relief during 1932 and that the funds from state, city and private sources would not be sufficient to carry the load through the winter.

President Hoover is now, as always, opposed to a direct appropriation from the treasury for unemployment relief purposes, holding that it would be in the nature of a dole and would be a dangerous precedent.

WETS in the house of representatives, it now appears, are to obtain only one vote on prohibition in this session. They may have their choice of whether this shall be on a referendum proposal for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment or on a measure calling for modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer.

Representative Rainey of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, said the judiciary committee would not report favorably on either measure. "The wets will have to bring the bill to the floor through the petition of 145 members," he said. "That is the only way in which they can do it. They will have but one vote and that either on a referendum or light wines and beer. They can't have both. The rules of the house will be so interpreted."

He said he felt the referendum had the better chance for "getting by" because many dyes, himself included, would vote for it.

NEITHER reparations nor war debts will be finally settled at the European conference which Great Britain has called to meet January 18 in Lausanne, if the program practically agreed upon by British and French treasury experts is adopted. They suggest a new three-year moratorium for Germany on the conditional reparations and that Germany be required during that period to pay the unconditional reparations into the Bank for International Settlements, such amounts to be immediately loaned by the bank to the German railways or re-invested within Germany, thus avoiding all cash transfers abroad by the reich.

The creditor powers would undertake to concede to Germany an impartial re-examination of her capacity to pay reparations toward the close of the moratorium period.

On this side of the water Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee comes forward with a call for international action to lower tariff barriers as the first step in solving the debt problem. The former chairman of the Democratic national committee says payments can be made only through the restoration of healthy international trade, that tariff walls have strangled trade and that it is "fatuous" to insist on debt payments and at the same time have world commerce hampered. The senator, who is a member of the Democratic policy committee in congress, says he purposes to offer a resolution looking toward a tariff conference of the nations.

SENATOR CAREY of Wyoming, Republican, and his subcommittee on banking amended the house bill to increase the capitalization of the federal land banks by adding the sum of $25,000,000 to be used in granting postponements on farm payments. This additional sum is to be repaid to the federal treasury by the banks when their need for the money has passed. Senator Carey believes the amendment will permit a moratorium and, at the same time, avoid weakening the banks.

A favorable report on the measure with the amendment was decided upon by the committee.

BOTH federal reserve and commercial banking officials are severely criticized for their course with respect to the stock market collapse in the fall of 1929 in an appendix to the report being compiled by the senate banking and currency committee which is investigating the national and federal reserve banking systems.

The committee, headed by Senator Carter Glass, Democrat, of Virginia, who was sponsor for the Federal Reserve act in congress, is particularly critical of what it holds to have been the bank's excessive participation in the security markets and of the "mischievous effects" of loans made to brokers "for account of others."

A suggestion is offered that the banks be prohibited from acting for corporations, investment trusts and others in making such loans. At the same time, the report shows the nation's bankers are opposed to new restrictions upon their investments in securities.

Acting under a resolution by Senator Glass to "make a complete survey of the national and federal reserve banking systems," the subcommittee is expected to bring a bill to revise those systems in some particulars.

PRESIDENT HOOVER announced the appointment of the fourth member of the American delegation to the disarmament conference at Geneva, the man selected being Norman H. Davis of New York, who was under-secretary of state in the Wilson administration and chief financial adviser to the American delegation in the negotiations that resulted in the treaty of Versailles.

Later in the week the remaining delegate was appointed, he being Hugh Gibson, ambassador to Belgium, a veteran in such negotiations. As alternate in case any delegate cannot serve, Hugh Wilson, minister to Switzerland, was named.

Arthur Henderson, former foreign secretary in the Labor government of Great Britain, told correspondents in Paris that he expected to preside over the arms conference, although he no longer is in office.

MEMBERS of the "progressive" group in the senate are again talking about a third party in the campaign of 1932, and are said to be considering three possible candidates—assuming as they do, that President Hoover will be renominated by the Republican convention, and also assuming that the Democrats do not select a candidate to the liking of the group. The three the independents are talking about are Senator Borah of Idaho; Senator Hiram Johnson of California, who is sometimes too "regular" to suit a few of them, and Gov. Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, whose lightning rod is always up. Senator Norris of Nebraska will not let his name be considered.

The Republican independents, it is believed, would be satisfied with Franklin D. Roosevelt as the Democratic nominee, but his selection is no more certain now than it has been for months. Newton D. Baker announced in Cleveland that he would not be a delegate to the Democratic convention, but neglected to say whether or not he would accept the nomination if it were offered him. Both he and Roosevelt were declared "available candidates" by Joseph Daniels in a statement given out in New York. There was a recrudescence of the story that Alfred E. Smith would again ask for the honor of leading his party, and a spokesman for "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, spectacular governor of Oklahoma, said that gentleman might be a candidate. And the chances of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland must not be overlooked.

FINLAND had a national referendum on the question of abolishing the country's prohibition laws, and on the basis of early returns it was estimated that the 90 per cent of the Finns voted wet.

ARCHBISHOP DIAZ, head of the Catholic church in Mexico, has instructed his priests and all other Catholics to disregard the new law passed by congress which limits to 25 the number of priests in the federal district. So the chances for renewed trouble there are good.

"MIRACLE WOMAN" FEATURE AT LOCAL THEATER TONIGHT

Barbara Stanwyck comes to the Campbell Vitaphone theater today and tomorrow in Frank Capra's production, "The Miracle Woman." This picture is adapted from the stage success and is the dramatic and romantic story of a girl who fooled everybody but herself. Virtue was her only sin because she allowed it to be exploited. This is really a wonderful picture. David Manners plays the male lead.

Thursday and Friday the theater will show Winnie Lightner in "Side Show." This is a circus picture and is an emotional drama of the lives and loves of the circus people.

"The One Way Trail," Tim McCoy's latest western, will open at the theater Saturday and will lead you to an hour of ace high thrills. It is a whirlwind adventure of daredevilry that is romance-packed and thrill-tangled, the sort of action drama that has no let-up before the final scene.

"Graft," with the cast including Regis Toomey, Sue Carol, Dorothy Rivier and Boris Karloff will be shown Sunday and Monday. It is a fast moving drama of romance and adventure. It is said to be even better than "Five Star Final."

Next Tuesday and Wednesday will be shown "The Bargain," with Lewis Stone and Doris Kenyon taking the leading roles.

Watch for an announcement both at the theater and in these columns for an impending change of policy in the operation of the theater.

CAN YOU NAME OUR PRESIDENTS IN THE ORDER OF OFFICE?

How many people, do you believe, can give the names of all the presidents of the United States. It is important for a loyal American to know them, and the order in which they occupied the office:

First stands the lofty Washington, That noble, great, immortal one. The elder Adams next we see, And Jefferson comes, number three. The fourth is Madison, you know; The fifth on the list, Monroe. The sixth, an Adams comes again, And Jackson, seventh in the train. Van Buren eight upon the line, While Harrison comes number nine. The tenth is Tyler in his turn,

HIGHLIGHTS OF 1931 SPEAK FAVORABLY OF THIS COMMUNITY

If H. L. Mencken should happen to get hold of this he would probably consider it a gold mine for his "American" column in the "Mercury." Be that as it may it is our intention to review briefly interesting items in the news (local) of 1931.

In January friends were pleased to read of the appointment of Al Covey to a deputyship in the sheriff's office; the Santa Clara County Consolidated Chamber of Commerce met with the Kiwanis club; the Chamber of Commerce held its annual banquet at which the newly elected sheriff, William Emig, pledged his support to the community; Dunlap & Smily took on the Ford agency, in which venture they have been singularly successful; the high school seniors played "Adam and Eva" to a full house.

February witnessed the high school board sign the deed to the 18-acre Hagelin tract for a new high school site; Dr. Frank R. Anderson was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce; all set for Old Settler's day, which was considered one of the best celebrations in years.

Grammar school students in March presented a group of operettas to an enthusiastic audience; 15 applications seek night patrol job left vacant by resignation of George Barnes; Carl Field, Ed Wiesendanger and S. N. Hedegard re-elected to respective positions on school boards.

April 13 and 14 found the Sixth District P. T. A. Congress in session at the grammar school auditorium; Harry Evans succeeded Barnes as night watchman; "School Week" observed, Vierling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction, speaker; Thelma Brooks, queen candidate; Bondons open jewelry shop.

"Harry Evans only night officer sponsored by organization," says Chamber of Commerce in May, after heated controversy with other aspirants.

June—1,200 persons witnessed the graduation of 67 students from the high school and 40 from the grammar school.

"Ford Day!" For the first time in quite a while most of the town's business people got together and helped Dunlap & Smily put over their Ford show on July 10. Record crowd.

School opened in September; that's about all for that stanza, so we'll take this opportunity to call your attention to the lack of important fires in the community during the past year; oh, yes—we nearly forgot a couple of items: Frank Haliwell bought the Morgan dry goods establishment, and John Fortini bought the Gomez barber shop; hold everything! we're starting: Shadle moved to a new location; Sea Scouts make successful 300-mile voyage; Clark remodels store.

In October, the local Community Chest drive, headed by Carl Field, went over the top with several hundred dollars to spare.

It is possible that we may have missed something in this resume, and as we remarked in the opening paragraph our year's high spots might seem laughable to a metropolitan community. On the other hand the laugh may well be ours, for the Campbell Press found it necessary to publish no lurid accounts of human slaughter, no messy domestic wrangles, and little else that was disagreeable. There have been a few breaks in the harmony, but all in all the community may consider itself very fortunate indeed.

WILL YOUR FUNDS HAVE this added security in 1932?

There is real satisfaction in knowing that your savings have that added margin of security to meet any conditions.

San Jose Pacific savers during 1932 will enjoy real peace of mind because of the conservative 5% interest rate and added margin of security that this moderate yield makes possible. They have added confidence in the leadership, the conservative policies and sound business judgment for which this pioneer association is noted.

But, even more important, they have added protection because of the strong financial position of this pioneer association—indicated by its paid-in-capital, surplus, undivided profits and loan reserve in excess of $1,000,000—the largest in Santa Clara County.

Funds received by January 11 will earn interest from January 1.
